A Witchita thief stole a Bible.
Hope he reads it.

The raw deal, unfortunately,
is not as rare as it might be.

No, Johnnie, all the yaps do not live on the island of Yap.

March did not bring us much good weather, but April May.

A stock pool apparently is a place where suckers are caught.

Many prospective heirs had

The political pot will boil with no other fuel than hot air.

As a rule, when a man picks a wife she has picked him first.

You will probably miss it if you judge a husband by his wife.

Man is made of dust. Dust settles. Be a man.

Paris wants to reform the modern dance. Anybody object?

One way to make a man hard-boiled is to keep him in hot water.

A man seldom blows when he comes out at the little end of the horn.

The man who lost his eyesight
by drinking bootleg liquor can now see his mistake.

People who say the world is getting worse are probably not getting any better themselves.

It will take more taxes to raise the bonus, and the bonus will raise taxes. And there you are.

Nothing will make a woman unhappier than to be without a new hat unless it is to see a neighbor with a new hat.

Half the people object to supporting the government, and the other half wants the government to support them.

how about the collections?

Plant City is soon to have a

Some congressmen are still trying to find out whether the taxpayers or the ex-service men have the greatest number of votes.

Congresswoman Robertson
says she is a Republican because Andrew Jackson put her grandfather in jail. And an exchange says this is a better reason than many people can give for their choice of a party.

AIRPLANE LANDINGS

A Philadelphia builder advertises that all the houses he is erecting are being equipped
with radio telephone service,
and this is causing a lot of talk.
There is nothing that Americans
like better than a thing with all the latest improvements.

A few years hence prospective tenants, after inspecting a house, will ask, "You have plenty of closet room, a large bath,
everything convenient, and you
have, of course, an airplane
landing on the roof?"

Airplanes soon will take off
by rising straight in the air.
Airplanes landing on house roofs in the future will be as common as garages are now,
perhaps.

A LESSON IN COURAGE

Fourteen months ago Lillian Lorraine, a New York actress, slipped and fell down a flight of stairs. She was picked up, broken up, broken by a paralyzed back. Her physicians frankly told her she could hope for nothing better than a bed-ridden life, that recovery was beyond hope and possibility.

But last week she returned to Broadway, the creator of a new role in comedy. She was able to do this because she had lived up to the spirit that was in her declaration to her doctors: "I am going to get well. My back is broken but not my nerve. If right thinking will help you to help me, I'll give it to you every minute of every day."

Thus, Lillian Lorraine has become a lesson in conduct, an inspiration to every man and woman. She has demonstrated anew the elemental truth that courage is the thing that counts most in human life.

Without courage, you have neither the strength to endure nor the power to achieve. Without it, neither talent nor popularity can make you more than a leaf on the current of circumstances.

But, having courage, there is no force you may not defy and no task you cannot accomplish. Having it, you can laugh at accidents and wrest promise from calamity, and neither disease nor financial disaster nor the failure of friends may keep you from doing whatever you want to do.

ARE YOU A WEED?

Gertrude Hall has a poem in one of the current magazines on the weed, which purports to give the mental attitude of the unwelcome plant in the garden as it enjoys its little hour in the sunshine before the gardener spies it and punishes its daring by uprooting it and throwing it aside to shrivel and die.

What is the average weed's offense in the world? It is not merely in living but in seeking to live in the garden, under the "very nose of her fastidious majesty, the rose."

Virtually every so-called weed, the scientists tell us, has a right to live, and has a real service to perform, one deserving to win the gratitude of mankind, if the truth about it were known. And the offense for which so many weeds pay the penalty in human hatred and in untimely death is simply the offense of being in the wrong place.

How many people are that way? How many lives capable of giving good service to the world are in the wrong niche, and get only rebuff, repulses and heart-breaking treatment because of it?

THE MAN THAT COUNTS

The doughboy with the bayonet is still the most important war device, army officers say. Airplanes, artillery, machine guns, guns and tanks are important, but they are in the background.

It is the same way in all walks of life. It is always the man that counts—not the job, conditions or equipment.

The best bookkeeper the Standard Oil Company ever had was John D. Rockefeller. He did not merely keep books; he looked ahead, and made good use of his opportunities.

THE DISABLED VETERANS

Hanford McNaider, national commander of the American Legion, in a recent address said: "I pledge you that the American Legion is going to fight first for the man who is fighting for his life."

"Our big fight is for the man who came back lame or blind, who must live through the war forever."

The whole American people, however, divided they may be upon the question of the soldiers' bonus, are unitedly sympathetic with this first aim of the American Legion.

The first duty of the nation should be to care for, sustain, comfort and compensate as far as possible the young men disabled in the country's service during the world war.

Those who are no longer able to help themselves because of their self-sacrifice for the nation deserve from it the most liberal treatment. And they should have it now.

The American people will never protest or complain against whatever is done to alleviate the sufferings of the soldiers who were disabled through disease or wounds, or accident while in the service of the nation, either overseas or in training camp in this country.

Liberality, liberality to the utmost for the disabled veterans.

BABE RUTH'S BONUS

The New York World thinks the New York baseball association has done an unfortunate thing in contracting to pay Babe Ruth $500 for each home run that he knocks while playing baseball this year.

It is all right to pay Ruth $75,000 a year, the World says, if he is worth it, but it contends that the bonus principal is wrong.

Suppose, the World argues, that the pitcher of an opposing team has lost the game and knows it, and Ruth comes to bat. If the pitcher has no unkind feeling toward Ruth, it will be the easiest thing in the world to slip him an easy one and let him make $500. Even if the pitcher is not really willing to do this, the knowledge that Ruth stands to make $500 on a home run is calculated to make the pitcher nervous. It places him in an awkward position, no matter how honest he may be.

What do you think about it?
